Lindsay did a demonstration on air layering.

For the demonstration, Lindsay used a Cork Japanese Black Pine. He picked out a proper location where to establish a new tree and proceeded by making 2 cuts around the trunk about 1" apart, making sure that the cuts were through the cambium layer. Lindsay then tightly wrapped a wire right up against the upper cut and added seaweed extract on the open area. He then attached a clear orchid type plastic pot with splits around the pot for ventilation and filled it with LGM potting mix and instructed us to keep the soil watered and never let it dry up. See pictures.
